"Oh, let's take a little ride!" They were shouting skyward again. "Why don't you come up sometime?" She leaved off and headed for the hills. Sarah Lynn took pains to speak pleasantly, casually. "Kit, this has been great fun, and I'll be sure that you're a wonder, but I really must be getting back. My brother's waiting and I have a hundred things to do before we leave." She held the ship doggedly to its course. "Say, listen, I'd be doing you a big favor if I never saw you back to your freeman. You take it from me; they're all heels. I could write a book about 'em, babe. All alike from that age of yours to the dirty deuce I drew!"

Sarah Lynn achieved a laugh. "But, just the same, I must be getting home, Kit." She was fighting a swiftly growing anxiety, her eyes on the instrument panel, her ears listening earnestly to the motor. There was something about it, she didn't like, an alien sound.

They were flying low over the mountains, now.

"Remember that night in Fresno, when the freeman baled you out like a sack of mail?"

"I do, Kitty, and how kind you were to me! I'll never forget it. I've never stopped being grateful, and I've always hoped I could do something for you, sometime." She forced herself to speak steadily.

"Well, you squared it all right when you hopped with me, just now, showing those huns you had confidence—" she broke off, frowning.

Stark terror laid hold of Sarah Lynn. "Kit, what's the matter? Let me fly here! Here, let me! Kit, what's wrong?"

"Just everything, that's all," the stunt flier said, her voice rasped and shrill. "Just everything in the world! Well, what do we care, babe! Stand by for a crash!"

CHAPTER XII.

Kitty Medill crawled slowly and painfully out of the wreckage. Her clothing was grotesquely torn and blood ran brightly from cuts on her face and body. She limped unsteadily to a large flat rock at a little distance.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 50), who wants to get her appeal to men, who want to get her back. One of the best ways to get a man's attention is to be a woman who is a woman. You need a reliable "WOMAN'S FRIEND" to help you get your physical appearance, which helps you to get a man's attention. This is a good time to get a reliable "WOMAN'S FRIEND" to help you get your physical appearance, which helps you to get a man's attention. tance and sat down, her hands over her eyes, shaking, whimpering, cursing. She kept herself resolutely blindfolded. "It's just a lousy dream," she told herself. "That's a nightmare, like when you eat something awful. Pretty soon I'll wake up." She pressed her hands tighter over her eyes. "I won't look. I'm not going to look till I'm sure I'm awake. Just a lousy dream. I never took her up. I never—" She was on her feet, flinging back to the remnants of her plane.

She screamed when she saw what she was looking for. Sarah Lynn was pinned to the ground, face downward, one hand flung clear, an olive-skinned, sun-tanned hand, delicately muscular and thin with faint pink nails. In the midst of breakage and tragedy that hand looked normal and comfortable and unworried.

"You're not dead!" the flier addressed her harshly. "You're not dead. I won't let you be dead, do you hear?"

Sarah Lynn did not hear. Kitty Medill began to weep wildly. She got down to her knees and touched the hand. "It told you weren't dead!" she triumphed. "Now all I got to do is drag you out." She began a slow and thorough investigation. The weight resting on Sarah Lynn's back was utterly impossible for her to move even the fraction of an inch, and it held her like a vise from her shoulders to her hips. One arm was under her; the other, her legs, her head, were free of encumbrance. "Well, that's all to the good," Kit continued to talk to her. "All I got to do is find something to use to pry that junk loose so you can wriggle out."

She stood erect and walked unsteadily away. They were on a ledge in a canyon, with mountain crests all about them. One, higher than the rest, she thought must be Mount Unumh, named in the Indian days. There were no trees. She stood on a rock to look. There was absolutely nothing which she could use as a lever to pry the load off Sarah Lynn.

She walked back to the smashed ship and took stock. Exploration discovered her flask half full of whiskey, matches, four sandwiches in a tin box. She set her treasures together on a flat stone and turned at a sound. Sarah Lynn was moaning. Kitty Medill ran to her. "Hello, babe! Okeh?"

"Kit?" a faint whisper came. "Yeah, Kit's right here!"

"My... back... Could you lift a...?" Kit swallowed hard. "Well, you see, kid, it's pretty heavy. I can't quite cut the mustard, alone. But they'll be along, now, most any time, and we'll have you out before you know it."

"All... right..." another sighing whisper answered.

"Sure we will. They were watching us, all those birds at the field. They know the course I took; and when we don't show up, they'll be out after us." She thought Sarah Lynn was asleep.

The whisper came again, "Kit—"

"My back... Couldn't you lift it... a little?"

She would try, she told her. She did try, fanatically, futilely, straining until she was crimson and gasping. "See? Can't make the grade. But just as soon as the boys get here—and they'll bring tools and everything—"

Her passenger did not appear to be listening. After an interval she said, "Water..."

The stunt flier managed a very good laugh. "Well, that's the joker. Didn't have any on board, and I was sent go barging around looking for a spring and get lost in the dark. But I'll tell you what I have got!"

She retrieved the flask. "No more water round here than you'd find in a creek, but a little 'twig of it'll do you more good anyway!" She crawled as close as possible to Sarah Lynn, said an arm beneath her head, managed to lift it a few inches and held the liquor flask to her lips, but she coughed and choked. "Well, for Pete's sake, don't waste it! Well, anyway, I'm going to put my handkerchief under your face; keep it off the dirt." She smoothed the square of solid pink linen and spread it beneath the bruised cheek. "It betcher that feels better!" She stood up and looked down at her for a long moment. "It's just your back that's caught, babe. Arms and legs okeh. Might be a good idea to move your legs once in a while, you know, exercise 'em. Try it, will you?"

Sarah Lynn was motionless. "Go on, kid! Just to please me! Move your legs!"

Sarah Lynn said, "Are you sure... my legs... are there? I don't think I have... any legs."

"All right," Kit said after a pause. "Let it go. Probably better to just lay still and rest, anyhow, till they come for you."

"Why, I'll bet they're tumbling out to hunt already, places and people on horseback and Boy Scouts and everything. Don't you fret. I got you into this jam and I'll get you out of it. Sure; the posse's out now, I'll bet, to rescue you and to string me up. Well, see if I care!"

She sat down as near to her as she could get and took hold of the one free hand. Dusty filled the canyon. "Gee, it gets dark fast here. Like dropping a curtain, or switching off a light. Well, that's all right; sooner it's night the sooner it'll be morning. Just don't you fret yourself, babe. You hear me? Don't you worry."

"I won't..." the whisper answered. A bird, somewhere above them, began a plaintive call which consisted of small, and notes dropped down in groups of four, over and over.

"Oh, cut that out, will you?" Kitty Medill demanded. "We heard you the first time."

When it was completely dark a cold wind came up, and there began to be a comfortable distance away. It was the fluttering, the creeping and crawling close by which filled her with sick terror. Owls called eerily to each other. Occasionally she struck a precious match to look at Sarah Lynn, and twice she was able to break off bits of a sandwich and get her to swallow, but what she wanted was water. Kit wanted it herself.

"Wouldn't that slay you?" she thought. "Me—craving water?" When she found it was useless to try to make Sarah Lynn talk she put her head down on her knees and slept in broken matches. Good luck for both of them to get their rest; the Big Swede would be after them by daybreak, and after them was right: two ways.

The world was bright with morning light long before the sun made its way into their canyon. Kit yawned and stretched and got stiffly to her feet. It was crisp and cold and quiet and the sky was serenely blue. Sarah Lynn seemed to be talking to herself.

"Well, good morning!" Kit said ragedly, "if that's what you call it. But it's got the night beat a million miles, anyhow, and—listen! Listen! Planes!" She began to dance up and down, to cry and to laugh. "Babe! Don't you hear 'em? Gee—their're all Planes—flying over us!" She waved and screamed wildly, but the ships passed over and were gone, though they could still hear them. Sarah Lynn's voice said hoarsely, "Buzards... buzzards... Didn't you know... we were... dead?"

"Say, listen, we're not dead and we're not going to be dead! I tell you they're on the job, looking for us! It won't be long, now!"

Easy To Understand

Reason The King And Queen Have Won All Canada

Their Majesties have been infinitely more effective in winning public affection and arousing an immense popular enthusiasm than even the most optimistic lover of royalty could have anticipated. It is the simple plain truth which will be realized only by those who actually witnessed the scenes accompanying their welcome that the ardor of the greetings frequently required the emotional relief of tears. At all times it was a pitch of enthusiasm which has never been equalled in this country since its foundation.

The causes are not far to seek. It would be impossible to imagine a more appealing and yet in the highest sense satisfying combination than that presented by the almost vestral modesty of the King and undeniably genuine desire of the Queen to leave nothing undone that could possibly please and gratify the humblest Canadian who had come out to welcome her husband and herself. Never for a moment did either of them spare themselves. Never did they lose the common touch which enabled them to understand as by intuition just what the plain people, who were cheering them, the top of their voices, would want them to do.—Montreal Star.

Reason For Objection

Queen Mary's dislike of Ivy growing on a wall is not an objection to the creeper itself, she thinks that it harbors germs and insects which eventually get into a house, says a writer in the London Daily Sketch. The 200-year-old ivy which covered the north wall of Peter Court, St. James's Palace, until removed recently, was often commented on by Queen Mary.

After having driven over 50,000 miles in four years without mishap, Mr. S. G. Robson, an accountant, of Dollis Hill, London, had to take a driving test. 2310

SHE WAS A VICTIM OF HEADACHES

Kruschen Got at the Cause

"The woman's headaches were of the gripping kind that reduce the sufferer to something like helplessness. She tried tablets. She tried pills. All without avail. Only Kruschen could help her."

"I used to get very bad headaches," she writes. "No tablets or pills of any kind could relieve them. One morning, casually, I tried Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water. I continued taking it, but I have not had one of those awful headaches since. Kruschen salts is better than anything else. I find it very good."

Headaches can nearly always be traced to sluggishness of the kidneys, liver and intestines, and to the unabsorbed retention in the system of disgusting waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen actually regularize internal organs to healthy, regular action so that no clogging waste is allowed to collect. You inside is kept clean and serene. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings quick and lasting relief from headaches.

Have Their Instructions

Jewish Refugees In Australia Told To Speak English

"Do not try to teach the cows German; they would rather be milked in English."

This injunction is prominently posted over the entrance to the dairy of the Chelsea Park, a 30-acre property in the hills near Sydney, Australia, which has been purchased by a company formed by the Australian Jewish Welfare Society to train Jewish refugee emigrants as small farmers, fruit and poultry raisers and domestic workers.

Another prominent notice enjoins trainees to "speak or laugh in any language you like, but ONLY SPEAK ENGLISH!" The trainees, especially the younger ones, are very enthusiastic about learning their new tongue.

Primarily the farm is for training married couples before they are sent to jobs. Those with capital are given further experience with farmers before they invest in small farms of their own.

Large sums of money have been given towards this farm scheme by Jewish communities, both in Australia and in other parts of the world. The society is definitely opposed to any form of group settlement and insists that the Jewish migrants which it helps shall apply for naturalization at the earliest possible opportunity.

New Type Of Matches

Are Perfumed To Do Away With Snell Of Sulphur

Most of us dislike the rank smell of sulphur that rises when we strike a match. You will be glad, therefore, to hear about a new match, which not only does away with the unpleasant odor, but gives off a scent that perfumes the whole room. The secret is that the shank of the match is perfumed, and the ignition releases the scent. Now if someone will invent a way of perfuming the exhaust from motor cars, we'll walk in a veritable garden of roses.—New Ideas.

Holds World's Record

Products Of South African Farm Number 572 Different Kinds

That his farm holds the world record for the number of products grown or manufactured of the spot was claimed by P. J. Van Dyck as he exhibited at the agricultural show in Worcester, South Africa, and was publicly complimented by the Minister of Agriculture.

He displayed 572 different kinds of produce from his acres and could not find room for an additional 40. The varieties ranged from 35 kinds of firewood and beans to the skins of game and snakes, harness, wooden implements shaped from specially hard woods, olives, walnuts, wheat, corn, lucerne, wine, grapes, fruit and preserves.

Van Dyck maintains that his farm is almost self-sustaining.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, June 5.—The King and Queen have seen Alberta, and have been seen by hundreds of thousands of Albertans. They have gone again, but they have left behind a healthier feeling in this province, a healthier respect for the British crown and the established institutions of democracy as understood in the British Empire, and a healthier understanding of what the relations of the Empire and the Dominion of Canada mean to this one province.

It was a personal triumph for the handsome, strong young King, and for the beautiful charming Queen. Even more than in Calgary a week before, the crowds went wild in acclaiming Their Majesties. Fifty thousand persons gathered from every section of central Alberta, and many of them from the south as well, packed into one street leading from the MacDonald hotel to the station to hail them as the King and Queen stood on the balcony of the hotel, and refused by their cheers for ten minutes to let them disappear from sight. In the Royal progress during the afternoon, 200,000 persons lined the route.

It was the answer to politicians who have wondered whether Alberta would adhere to the crown, and to established institutions. It was regarded as the most spectacular reception Their Majesties received anywhere in Canada.

All the members of the legislative assembly were invited to be presented to the King and Queen at the legislative buildings, and to attend the government dinner in the evening. The King and Queen had tea privately with the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Bowen at the buildings, and walked with them at the railway station and at the hotel, but Premier Aberhart had the honor of being "host" at the government dinner, even though the lieutenant-governor is head of the government. "The lieutenant-governor-in-council."

It is true that Aberhart was booed and heckled by the crowds in several sections: as he rode in the royal progress procession, in the second car behind the royal car (the lieutenant-governor and Prime Minister Mackenzie King riding in the car next to Their Majesties).

Public feeling had been running particularly high against Aberhart for two days before, as a result of his announced intention of having his own granddaughter from Vancouver present Alberta's official bouquet of flowers to the Queen on the steps of the legislative buildings. The premier arranged for newspapers to get photographs of the Vancouver child, and the announcement of the plan was made to newspapers and radio.

The outcry by the public was instantaneous. Newspapers were deluged with calls protesting against the premier's action in bringing his granddaughter in from another province to represent Alberta; officials got hundreds of calls; it was reported that some rural telephone lines were so tied up by calls of inquiry and protest that operators sought official confirmation of the premier's plan, so as to tell subscribers.

The situation became so bad, it was reported, and confirmed officially, that Mayor Fry, of Edmonton, and the civic-provincial royal visit committee told the premier that they could not be responsible if the public were to break out in a demonstration against the premier during the royal tour, and steps would have to be taken to let the King and Queen know that the boos and hisses were not directed against them.

So the plan was changed; the premier agreed that, as at first intended, the flowers would be presented by little Mary Stacey, resident of a charity institution in Edmonton. She did it beautifully. Men and women who have been travelling with the King and Queen throughout the tour and it was the most dramatic incident they had seen anywhere when the little girl from the orphan's home made the presentation to Her Majesty the Queen.

HIS MAJESTY COMMENDS
CBC ARRANGEMENTS FOR
EMPIRE DAY BROADCAST

Winnipeg, June 5.—His Majesty King George VI. recently expressed appreciation of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's arrangements for the transmission of his Empire Day speech at Winnipeg. The address was the climax of the special broadcast from the Dominions and India which was heard over the CBC national network, through the Empire and in the United States.

Following is the message sent from Medicine Hat, Alberta, to Major W. T. Gladstone Murray, general manager of the CBC, by A. F. Lascelles, private secretary to the King:

"The King greatly appreciates the arrangements made by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for the transmission of his speech on May 24 to all parts of the Empire, and heartily congratulates you and your colleagues in their success."

COAL OPERATORS
FACE DILEMMA

The producers of coal have no quarrel with labor, but the operators are met on one hand with demands for increase in wages, and on the other hand with a decreasing annual return for his labor, and it would be better to have more working days at a reasonable rate of pay than many less days work at higher wages, which did not allow the operators to compete with other coals on the market.

Every 25 cents an operator could knock off the price of coal and pass on in savings to the consumer meant more orders and more days work.

FARM AND HOME WEEK

A new summer activity, to be known as "Farm and Home Week," has been inaugurated in connection with the Olds School of Agriculture. The purpose of the feature is to provide men and women of rural Alberta with an opportunity of spending a week at the Olds school, living in the school residence, enjoying the campus, examining the experimental plots, the live stock and the farm, and at the same time attend a series of lectures and demonstrations on many phases of agriculture and home economics. This year's session is to be held June 26 to 30, inclusive, and, according to advice from Edmonton, you are cordially invited to attend. Applications for accommodation should be addressed to James Murray, principal, Olds School of Agriculture. Rates for room and board have been set at $1.25 per day per person. A copy of the programme may be seen at The Enterprise office.

Shoes with uppers made of place, and soles made of leather, may sound kinda fishy, but a new industry has been established at Copenhagen, Denmark, for footwear manufacture on these very lines. The idea of utilizing fish skin as a synthetic leather resulted from research undertaken by Capt. W. Nellemose, of the Ocean Research Council. It is reckoned that Denmark has an immense potential reserve of leather in its fish skins, for there can scarcely be a country in the world that, proportionately, consumes so much filleted and skinned fish as Denmark. Eight skins are necessary for a pair of shoes.

THE ROYAL VISIT

The joyous cheers of countless multitudes,
The heaving breasts and loudly-beating hearts;
The sighs of admiration from all parts
Of our fair land. The welcome, rousing tunes;
The cities decked with colors bright and gay;
The hoisted flags; the cheerful council halls
With canopies of royal hues, and walls
All hung with portraits stately in array—
Wherefore this atmosphere of holiday?

Why are those eager eyes of young and old
Beaming with radiance of joy untold?
Is it because the festive month of May
Pours forth its glory on the world today?

Or are the people of the land to gay
Because they sense the coming of the day
When they no longer will endure dismay?

That day will come—but now awake!
Behold! There tread the strands of our fair land

Two welcome victors, stately and grand;
Two Monarchs of our troubled times who make

Our hearts rejoice within new tide of bliss;
And like a happy child whose mother's kiss

Adds more of gaiety and boundless joy,
So we are thus inspired and upheld
By our Sovereigns. They are so human both.

So very close to us in heart and mind
That as they cross the land and meet our kind,

They spread and sow the seed of loyal note.
The warm and hearty hand-shake of the King,
That glorious, sunny smile of the Queen,

Her manner pleasing and interest keen
In ordinary folk, who, surrounding
Her Majesty, do longingly aspire,
But for one single, kindly smile—

A word or question which they might cherish
Long years hence; and then lest it should perish,
Tell and tell again the story to their sons:

Of how the King and Queen both seemed so pleased
To meet their subjects here, and thus increased
Our firm belief in strong and mighty cause,

The cause of Freedom and Democracy.
What vain hopes and aspirations of those
Who rule the slaving men by force of arms!

What gaze of wonder from our greedy foes,
With whom but might is right—whose greedy arms
Would fain enfold the lands beyond the main,

And choke the Freedom's soul within our hearts!
Their hopes are doomed, for we will e'er remain
To Freedom true, and cultivate the arts

Of peaceful, happy life. Had not our King
In solemn tone proclaimed to all the world
(From Canada's cities his voice did ring)

That we, the mighty British brotherhood
Shall never bow our heads to scornful might?
Nor shall we ever give away our right

To think and speak and act as best seems fit—
We'll ne'er endure the regimental bit.
This common spirit doth pervade us now

Far more than ever did it so before;
The Empire's web doth still unbroken grow.
While one bright sun the steady light doth pour—

Light that makes the Isles and all Dominions

Grow sturdy roots within the British Crown;

'Neath the rays of which, free men's opinions
Are still respected, and not trodden down.

Let the cheers throughout our land loudly ring;
From shore to shore our gracious Queen and King

Have crossed the land. Back to the Isles now
With joy o'erfilled, they recollections bring

Of their true subjects here, both high and low.
The tumult and the shouting slowly wanes;

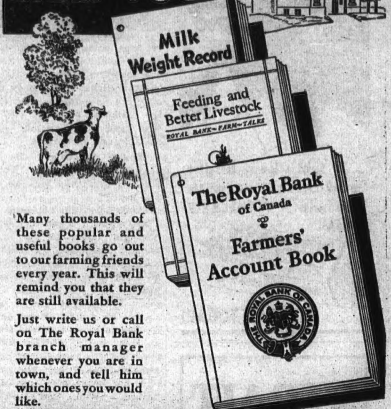

The Royal Train leaves behind it our plains,
But the mighty echo still remains:
Long live our Sovereigns!

Sir Edward Beatty Chats with King and Queen

Just before leaving Montreal, Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth met and shook hands with several directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Herbert Holt. Other directors presented by Sir Edward Beatty were Sir Charles Gordon, G.B.E., D. C. Coleman, vice-president, Brig.-Gen. F. S. McHugh, C.M.G., Ross McMaster and M. W. Wilson.

LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS

Creston is suffering from a shortage of dwellings.

J. H. Ross, supervisor, was in town on Wednesday, conferring with local parties on matters connected with youth training and rehabilitation. A meeting held in the office of L. Pozzi in the evening was largely attended.

Rev. Dr. C. C. McLaurin, veteran superintendent of Baptist missions in Alberta and British Columbia, at the ripe age of 82 left last week to travel by bus to Toronto. Before returning to Calgary he will visit various points in the United States.

A double error occurred in an item last week referring to the distance from Cranbrook to Calgary, giving the mileage of the two routes. The item should have read: via Crows' Nest and Macleod 282 miles; via the Banff-Windermere route 288 miles.

We would like to compliment The Blaimore Enterprise on the splendid appearance of their special edition on May 26th. Blaimore is a progressive town in the Crows' Nest Pass, where the local merchants support their home paper and make it possible to have a good paper. Where there is no support, the paper perishes. — Red-cliff Review.

Mrs. Bernie Beal, of Bellevue, who has been visiting in Calgary with her parents, Sergt. J. J. Weaver, R. C. M. P., and Mrs. Weaver, returned to Bellevue Thursday last, accompanied by her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strong, who will visit in Bellevue for a short time. Before returning to their home, Mr. and Mrs. Strong will visit with the latter's brother, Mr. Clinton Rumsey, at Beaver Mines.

Local merchants are petitioning the town council for a by-law regulating opening and closing hours for stores. It is planned that all stores shall open at 8.30 a.m. and close at 5.00 p.m., excepting Wednesdays and Saturdays, when the closing hours would be 12.30 and 9 p.m., respectively. This plan will provide for a forty-two-hour week. One report made it appear that the stores would open at 8.30 p.m. and close at 5 p.m., which is speeding a little faster than the average merchant would wish.

A bride-elect of this month, Miss Ziata Aschacher, was tendered a shower at the Union hall on Friday evening last, when around one hundred of her relatives and friends were present. Cards were played during the early part of the evening, followed by a dainty luncheon served by the sponsors, Mrs. J. McAndrew, Mrs. L. Lord, and Mrs. J. Krokosky, Jr. On behalf of the assembled friends, Mrs. Krokosky presented Miss Aschacher with many beautiful gifts.

A Bellevue taxi car was considerably damaged by fire last week end. Miss F. Picard, nurse-in-training at the Holy Cross hospital, Calgary, is home for a brief vacation.

People are wondering why, in the selection of appointees for King's counselorships, our premier should ever have forgotten himself. To be qualified as attorney-general he should also be qualified for that title.

We won a bet last Friday when we claimed that Able would imagine himself still within the walls of his bible institute and addressing the "mike" instead of distinguished royalty. Many a local radio fan enjoyed a laugh over him.

M. R. MacKewich and C. C. Patterson were among the twenty-one Alberta lawyers announced as King's counselors in a Royal visit honor list issued by the Alberta government by order-in-council. Others included Hon. Lucien Maynard and W. E. Simpson, of Edmonton.

Back on the job this week is George Shearer. George had a series of unpleasant experiences during the past couple of weeks. Called to the Crows' Nest Pass by the illness of a relative, George suffered a car accident on the return trip, fortunately not serious, and then had the misfortune to take the flu, necessitating a stay between the covers. — Chapman Camp Note.

"Sunny Jim" Evans, one of the best known fire bosses in the Drumheller region, died in hospital at Drumheller on Thursday last from injuries sustained when a fall of cypress hit him while going through the Elgin mine. He stopped to repair a defect in the roof when the rock gave way and crushed him. He was fifty years of age and leaves a wife and young son.

Flying the new British fighting plane, Hawker-Hurricane, Squadron Leader Elmer Fullerton, R.C.A.F., made the run from Vancouver to Calgary via Lethbridge, on Friday last in the record time of two hours and five minutes. The distance from Vancouver to Lethbridge was made in an hour and three-quarters, and from Lethbridge to Calgary in only twenty minutes.

Large audiences turned out at St. Anne's church on Sunday last, the occasion of the first visit of Most Rev. Francis P. Carroll, D.D., bishop of the diocese. His Lordship officiated at the early and late masses on Sunday morning, and at the latter conferred the sacrament of confirmation upon a class of sixty boys and girls. At both masses stirring addresses were delivered. He congratulated the parish upon the splendid manner in which they co-operated with their pastor, Rev. Dean M. A. Harrington. Following the high mass, a reception was held, and His Lordship returned to Calgary on the afternoon train.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Smyth and son James are on a two weeks' visit to Spokane.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, who have spent the past several years in South America, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gunn for a few days this week. Mr. Wilson is on leave of absence from his work in the tropics, and he and Mrs. Wilson will take up residence in Calgary for the summer months.

Ralph Easterbrook, of Calgary, spent a few days here this week.

Harold Smith, who has been employed as teacher of the Olin Creek school, has resigned that position and left for New Zealand, where he intends spending some considerable time. His brother Felix, who graduated from the Calgary normal school this spring, will finish the term at the Olin Creek school.

Another heavy rain, which was much welcomed, fell over this district over the week end. This will be sufficient moisture to insure a good steady growth of grain crops for a period of several weeks. Pasture and meadow lands are greatly refreshed, and stockmen, together with the farmers, are rejoicing over prospects for a very prosperous season.

Among the people from Cowley who attended the air show at Lethbridge on Wednesday were: Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lemire, Armand and Irene Lemire, Nick Pap, Larry Porter, Morris and Reginald Labrie, Teddy and Alfred Dionne, Dick Alexander, Ronald and Lloyd Morrison, George Konkin, Mr. and Mrs. A. Horning, Gordon Swart, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tustian, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Matthews and Elaine, Michael Elton and Alvin Murphy. An exciting time was reported.

Chef instructor "Jimmy" Morgan, of the Canadian National Railways, chef to the King and Queen during their North American tour, has been "promised" a fur coat by Their Majesties. After inspecting the hot kitchen in the private car where Jimmy prepares the Royal meals, His Majesty remarked about the heat, and turning to the chef said, "I think I shall have to buy you a fur coat to wear when you leave this kitchen."

Miss Violet Irwin, nurse-in-training at the St. Eugene hospital, Cranbrook, is visiting relatives and friends at Cowley and the North Fork.

Twenty years ago Miss Jessie Sheard was transferred from Pincher Creek to the Union Bank branch in Blaimore. She is now Mrs. John Spence, of Red Deer.

Flying Officer G. Fraser, of Saskatoon, was instantly killed when his Hawker Hurricane single-seater fighter crashed near Mission, B.C., on Thursday morning.

Dr. H. McKensie closed the Nanton hospital on Thursday last. The hospital was opened by Dr. W. H. Keen in 1927, and had operated continuously until this month.

A new system of stocking streams is being introduced by the fisheries department in the Jasper-Edson area. Three hundred thousand rainbow trout fry are being brought down from Lesser Slave Lake hatchery, and are being placed in seven rearing ponds on the Merryweather Creek, Lake Wabamun, where they will be fed a daily ration of chopped beef liver with an occasional feed of dried fish egg meal. In an experiment last summer at the end of the month of May and fed all summer reached four inches in length by the month of October. These four-inch fry were then used to stock different waters of the province.

The Enterprise has been so busy turning out printing of various descriptions, including a very large volume in connection with Royal and patriotic events, that we have not had time to remove May 24th and 26th decorations from our windows. We have now decided to leave our windows decorated, and will add the finishing touches for July 1st.

Editor H. T. Halliwell and Mrs. Halliwell, of Coleman, journeyed to Edmonton, where by special request they were assigned close-up positions to see Their Majesties the King and Queen. Mr. Halliwell returned home on Sunday night, while Mrs. Halliwell remained in the capital to be guest for a few days with her daughter, Miss Wilma, member of the University hospital staff.

This is Life Insurance

IN THOUSANDS OF Canadian homes, life insurance money pays the bills—helps to support widows and children—and provides for old age.

Life insurance dollars buy the food for three square meals a day. They buy clothing and other necessities of life. They pay the rent and fuel bills to ensure warm, comfortable homes. They give children an education and a mother's care.

Each year, life insurance policy-owners and their beneficiaries in Canada receive 150 million dollars—five hundred thousand dollars every working day—twenty thousand dollars every hour.

And it is significant that more than 75% of all life insurance payments are made to living policyholders.

The Problem Of The Metis

It is not surprising that the half breeds, or Metis, of Saskatchewan have organized, held their first annual convention and drawn up a program of reforms, consisting of some 15 points to be presented to the federal government, or that as soon as they heard what was in the wind, the Metis of the other two prairie provinces expressed a desire to join forces with the Saskatchewan group and set up an organization to cover Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

For the Metis have a very real problem and one that is even more acute than that of the farmers in the prairie provinces, the unemployed dwellers in the cities and towns or of those who are on the border of relief.

These others are regarded, more or less, as the wards of one or more of the three governing units of the country, but not the Metis. Up to the present the federal, provincial and municipal governments have shown a disposition to wash their hands of the half breed population. They are the unwanted child and have been treated as such.

From the first days of settlement of the country the federal government has assumed and still assumes responsibility for the Indian, the original inhabitants of the country. All those who have come into the country since the days when the plains were solely occupied by the Indians, the bison and the gophers are presumed to be primarily the care of the municipalities, urban or rural, in which they reside, except when such conditions exist as to warrant the proclamation of national emergency, when the federal government or the federal and provincial governments jointly come to the rescue of the distressed in partnership with the municipalities, and in some cases and some areas without municipal assistance.

Country Dwellers

The great majority of the half breeds reside in the rural areas. In the first place because by nature they are not suited to urban existence and in the second place because they have inherited the Indian's love of the open air life and, under former normal conditions, have found their subsistence more readily in the country than in the cities and towns. Their way of life, which they have inherited from their Indian forebears, is that of trapping, hunting, fishing and other outdoor pursuits.

For this reason the large majority of the Metis are still to be found in country districts and the greater number of them are squatters, building shacks on waste lands and flats, preferably near wood and water or occupying abandoned and often enough tumble down buildings. Hence they have never been taxpayers in the municipalities in which they reside and have not even the status of other tenants who ordinarily contribute indirectly to municipal services through rentals.

Thus the municipalities have been very loath to assume any responsibility for these residents. The provincial governments have not seen fit to adopt them as their charges and the federal government refuse responsibility on the ground that they are not Indians.

Even before the advent of the great era of depression, the problem of the Metis was becoming severe. As more and more land was put into crop, as wild lands where a little hay could be put up became more and more curtailed, as wooded lands where fuel or fence posts could be cut receded, and as increasing restrictions were placed on hunting, trapping and fishing in the interests of game conservation and wild life preservation and as such restricted areas were extended, the half breeds found it increasingly difficult to wrest a living from their surroundings. With the depression deepening during the past decade and with no government willing to assume responsibility for them, the problems of the Metis increased literally tenfold and they are problems that will not solve themselves with the return of normal conditions and better crops, especially for those who reside in the cultivated southern sections of the three prairie provinces.

As a result of this situation the Metis, during the past decade, have been living in almost unbearable squalor and poverty. Two or three years ago a relation of the conditions under which they were living, by a reeve of a municipality in which many Metis resided, almost stunned the 600 or 700 delegates at the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities. The convention was told that the Metis were on the borderline of actual starvation which the municipality could not relieve because of its financial condition and the necessity of taking care of its own taxpayers; that a dozen or more were sleeping on bare earth floors in a single room; that they were being exploited by other residents of the municipality and it was pointed out that existence under such conditions could do nothing else than breed disease and immorality.

Should Be Settled

At the time of writing the Metis have not released for publication the 15 point program which they drafted as a memorial to the federal government, so that it is impossible to say what is their own solution of the problem.

It appears, however, that it is a problem which must and should be solved, not only in the interests of the half breeds themselves, but in the interests of all whom they contact, at a joint conference between Federal and provincial authorities.

What such a conference would decide as the proper solution of the problem can only be a matter of conjecture, but, in view of the type of life to which they are best suited, it would seem advisable that reservations be created for them in the northern part of the provinces where they could live under conditions in which would enable them best to care for themselves. In any event the problem is serious enough to demand immediate and effective attention, especially in the light of the self evident fact that improved conditions for others will be of little or no benefit to the Metis population.

Magnificent Gift

Viscount Nuffield Donates Large Sum For British Troops

Viscount Nuffield, automobile magnate and philanthropist, announced his intention of contributing 1,000,000 shares of Morris Motors for "improving the facilities for recreation and enjoyment of the militia, Territorials and other forces."

His gift, worth approximately $1,500,000 ($6,000,000), was revealed in a letter to War Secretary Horne-Bellah. "It is intended," Lord Nuffield said, as a "permanent memorial to the spirit which animates us today."

Lord Nuffield has given away £13,000,000 (about $60,840,000) in the past few years, his beneficent gifts tending over such a wide range as to Oxford University, an iron lung to every empire hospital that wanted one, and large sums for rehabilitation of distressed areas of Britain.

In his letter to the war secretary, Lord Nuffield said he had been "greatly impressed by the wonderful response to the national appeal for voluntary recruiting."

"No less remarkable," he added, "has been the willing acceptance by all classes and parties of the principle of universal service, calling for equal sacrifice by all."

His letter said he was anxious to make "some personal contribution towards the comfort and well-being of those who are giving up, however temporarily, the ordinary course of civil occupations and home surroundings in the service of our country." The gift will be administered by trustees.

Chaplain On World Cruise Impressed By What He Saw

Back from a trip around the world, Rev. Father Wilfrid Langlois is impressed with the beneficence of British rule. His opinions are based mainly on what he saw in Egypt and India.

His pastor of St. Rose de Lima was chaplain on the world cruise of H.M.S. Empress of Britain. He touched at many ports and had an opportunity to gain some impressions of what is going on in the different corners of the world.

In both India and Egypt, Fr. Langlois discovered that British rule has established order among the native people. Although only a few Britons are there in comparison to the total population, they guide the destinies of the countries and direct the national activities along progressive channels.

The benefits of modern civilization have been brought to Egypt and India by the British. Education, medical care and scientific advancement have been extended throughout the countries. The natives have the benefit of progress.

As Fr. Langlois explains, the British have done a good job and their rule has been beneficent.—Windsor Star.

Entirely New Method

Machine Shells About 900 Pounds Of Walnuts An Hour

A new method of shelling walnuts recently developed at the University of California, uses an explosion to burst the shells. The shelling operation, which is done by machine, consists of passing the walnuts over a circular saw which cuts an opening through the shell; blowing explosive gas-air mixture into the nut; and finally passing the nut through a flame which explodes its gaseous content. This method of shelling shells avoids fracturing the nut meats, which are not affected by the explosive. The machine in which this series of operations is accomplished opens about 900 pounds of walnuts per hour.—Scientific American.

Robins Use Airplanes

Build Nests In Machines On Airfield In England

A recent report from Denham in Buckinghamshire, reveals that the robins there persist in building their nests in the airplanes on the local airfield. Possibly this is merely the result of advanced educational ideas among the robins, who hope to render their offspring "air-minded" at an earlier age than usual; or perhaps, although they seldom migrate, they have begun to hanker after the delights of more luxurious travel, and so have evolved this happy scheme, whose slogan is no doubt, "Stay at home and see the world."—Christian Science Monitor.

Trips To Mars

Edmonton Professor Puts Dampers On Flights To Other Planets

Wars of the worlds, trips to Mars, rockets to the moon—Utopias created by Jules Verne and H. G. Wells—were punctured in a 10-minute speech by an Edmonton professor before the Royal Society of Canada at Montreal.

Dr. J. W. Campbell told a group of Canadian savants it would take a rocket the size of a giant mountain like Mount Robson to carry any earth-dwellers to the earth's satellite, the distant, bland, affable celestial body, theme of countless love-songs through the centuries.

In meticulous scientific terms he pierced the legend of the rocket to the moon, and tore the ground from under the feet of the Utopia writers. "For every pound of matter returning from such a trip 1,000,000 tons would have to start out to provide mass for speed control," Dr. Campbell said.

He explained his paper had arisen from an alleged recently-made statement by an astronomer that "the possibility of travelling to the earth's satellite in a rocket does not seem so remote now as the realization of the television dream did less than a century ago, considering the scientific principles involved."

The Queen's Parasol

The return of the parasol which has been prophesied won new approval when it was learned that Queen Elizabeth had one made especially for her trip to America. This parasol is said to match one of her full-length garden party dresses and has a cane handle studded with rubies and sapphires. The cane was presented to the Queen by an Indian prince.

Science now knows everything except how a woman can keep on sweeping up more dirt when no more is brought in.

A Growing Industry

Cultivation Of Soyabean In Canada Becoming More Important

During the past few years the soyabean has been finding a place in Canadian industry and its cultivation is to-day an established factor in Canadian farming. The most important products of vegetable oil seeds are oils and meals, which in turn become raw materials for many useful commodities.

To-day, Canada is to a great extent dependent on foreign sources of supply for vegetable oils and meals. About $15,000,000 leaves this country annually for vegetable oil-seed products which could very well be retained here to benefit Canadian agriculturists. Both the federal and provincial governments have for some time been acclimatizing native grown soyabeans and many varieties are now available and suitable for localized soil conditions.

It has been definitely proved that Canada can produce soyabeans in commercial quantities, in fact the soyabean crop last year in Pelee Island, Ont. alone was valued at more than $35,000.

Radio Affects Homework

Offers Too Many Distractions Opinion Of Australia's Teachers

The Australian Press Union says Victorian and New South Wales education authorities are concerned at the effect of radio on homework. A New South Wales officer questions whether the home now has a suitable atmosphere for homework because many parents wish to listen. Victorian teachers are using this as an argument for a general reduction in homework. They say that the distractions at home are such that secondary school children cannot possibly do all the lessons set.

Collecting From Spain

Italy Will Accept War Materials In Payment For Services

Italy is preparing to collect war materials from Nationalist Spain by accepting Spanish materials valuable in munitions making, a reliable informant said.

The total owed by General Francisco Franco for aid to the Spanish Nationalist cause is said to be approximately 10,000,000 lire, (about $600,000,000). This does not represent cash advances but airplanes, guns, munitions and other supplies.

Italy is said especially to want iron ore in return. Italian plans are to exploit the ore reserves with Italian technicians, and possibly laborers, and to transport the ore in Italian ships.

An Italian-Spanish combine already has been set up to take care of Spain's mercury output. Since Italy and Spain are the main mercury-producing countries, the firm will control a great part of the world's mercury.

MORTGAGE BILL WOULD PROVE OF GREAT BENEFIT

Ottawa.—Thousands of Canadian farm and home owners who own mortgages to trust, loan or insurance companies stand to benefit by the central mortgage bank bill now before parliament.

Mortgages owing to individuals or to companies not choosing to become members of the central mortgage bank, or ineligible to do so, will not be directly affected by the legislation, but Hon. Charles Dunning, financial minister, expects great things from the measure in the way of a general reduction in all mortgage rates.

General principles of the legislation as it affects farm mortgages are: Elimination of all interest arrears more than two years overdue, incorporation of the immediate two years' overdue interest into the principal, adjustment of the principal sum so as not to exceed 80 per cent. of the farm's appraisal value, the mortgage to be extended to 20 years from the date of revision at five per cent.

Mortgages on non-farm homes would be affected similarly except that the extension of the mortgage is a matter for agreement and that the interest rate is to be 5½ per cent.

Example of a particular case where the mortgage is directly affected is:

A farmer has property appraised for $8,000 in the light of present conditions. There is a mortgage of $8,000 at seven per cent. Under the new law, the mortgage is reduced by eliminating two years' interest—$640—and then further adjusting the principal, including the other two years' interest arrears, so it would not exceed 80 per cent. of the appraisal value. The mortgage is now for 20 years at 5.64 per cent. interest is reduced to $6,400.

Yugoslavia Guarantee

Hitler Entertains Prince Paul At A State Dinner

Berlin.—Chancellor Hitler guaranteed Yugoslavia's borders in an exchange of toasts with Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, during a state dinner.

The German fuhrer said that in the Yugoslavians' requests, "we see a happy occasion for a frank and friendly exchange of views which I am convinced can only bring benefits to our peoples and states."

Stressing the friendship of Germany for Yugoslavia, he said, "we have become neighbors with common borders established for all time."

Prince Paul, in responding, noted Hitler's expression of respect for the Balkan country's border with the reich.

Jews Arrested

British Authorities Take Trouble Makers In Jerusalem Into Custody

Jerusalem.—British authorities arrested a number of Jews and suspended all urban autobus services of the Jewish Common Transport Company as a result of shots fired on Arab buses and disorders in the Tel Aviv district.

Several executive members of the Revisionist organization headed by Dr. David Ben-Gurion were taken into custody at Jerusalem. The Revisionists represent the extreme right wing in Jewish politics.

At Haifa, a military court condemned a Christian, Khalil Ibrahim Khoury, to death for killing a Jewish policeman, March 30.

Beirut.—The Arab high committee rejected the British government's proposal to make Palestine an independent state within 10 years. The committee demanded convocation of a constituent assembly to elaborate a constitution for Palestine without waiting for the end of the 10-year transition period.

Farm Homes For Sudeten

Winnipeg.—A party of 20 Sudeten families from the former republic of Czechoslovakia arrived here on their way to establish new farm homes in the St. Walburg district of Saskatchewan. There are 51 adults and 21 children in the group.

London.—The Duke of Connaught, great-uncle of the King and former governor-general of Canada, is offering for sale his Riviera home, "Les Bruyeres" at Cap Ferrat where, until a few years ago, he spent most of his winters.

Many Ceremonies Observed

As United States Paid Honor To Her Was Dead

Washington.—With booming guns, oratory and quiet visits to flag-draped graves, the United States expressed its traditional Memorial Day veneration for those who died in the uniform of its fighting forces.

And to the things usual to the day—services at Gettysburg, at Arlington national cemetery and a parade in New York—there was added a ceremony of the New Hampshire coast.

There, the guns of gray warships roared in salute, and a coast guard plane dropped wreaths upon the water in memory of 26 men of the navy dead within the steel walls of the sunken submarine Squaw.

For President Roosevelt and most high officials, the holiday was a day of leisure and rest. The president spent the day at his home in Hyde Park.

His 11 million people lined Riverside drive in New York to watch a parade in which the Coldstream Guards band participated. The band has been stationed at the World's Fair.

For Railways To Decide

Suggestion Made That Royal Train Be Put On Exhibition

Ottawa.—Public exhibition of the royal train across the country when the royal visit has been completed was proposed in the House of Commons by A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North).

Such interest had been demonstrated in the royal visit throughout the country that there was no doubt the public would take full advantage of an opportunity to inspect the train used by the King and Queen, he said.

Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, said the train involved no new equipment but only standard equipment "dressed up a little." The cost to the government had been merely that of painting and refurbishing the train. What was done with the train after the trip would be up to the railways but he would pass on the suggestion.

Cost Of Rearmament

Might Result In Starvation In Lower Income Groups

Geneva.—John C. Winant, director of the International labor office, warned that the armament race might result in "actual starvation in the lower-income groups."

"Rearmament cannot continue at the present rate of acceleration without eventually absorbing so much of the national income of many countries as will prove intolerable."

This month the Bureau for International Settlements estimated the world cost of arms at $1,000,000,000 a month.

Creates Grave Problem

Attempt Made To Segregate East Indians Living In Transvaal

Johannesburg.—An attempt to impose segregationist restrictions on East Indians living in the Transvaal has provoked one of the gravest problems in history affecting two partners of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It has been suggested that diplomatic relations may be broken off between the governments of South Africa and India as a result of the incident.

Casualties Were Heavy

Accidents Took 372 Lives During U.S. Memorial Day Celebrations

New York.—Violent death took at least 372 lives in the United States as the cost of the four-day Memorial day weekend.

In the three-day holiday period last year more than 250 were killed, and in 1937 the total was more than 350.

Highway crashes took more than 205 lives. Eighty-five persons drowned.

Rutherford, first premier of Alberta and chancellor of the University of Alberta for the past 12 years, was re-elected by acclamation in the annual senate nominations, it was announced by G. E. Praise For R.C.M.P.

King George Expresses Thanks For Services During Royal Visit

Vancouver.—King George wrote to Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, expressing Their Majesties' thanks for R.C.M.P. service during the royal visit and "our high appreciation of the manner in which they discharge their duty on all occasions."

His Majesty said he is proud to be honorary commissioner of the R.C.M.P., "a force that for many years has been famous throughout the world."

It was a genuine pleasure, he said, to be able to visit at Regina "your barracks, the training-ground of the splendid body of men who are to-day maintaining in all parts of Canada the great traditions of the force."

Iceberg Menace

Ships Are Warned To Take A Course Further South

Washington.—The United States navy department, and coastguard cautioned North Atlantic ships to take a course far south of their usual trans-Atlantic lanes to avoid an almost unprecedented southern movement of the iceberg area.

An unexpected shifting of the cold wall of air has sent the bergs deeper south in the Atlantic than they have been observed in a century, the navy's hydrographic office said.

HARD BARGAIN WOULD BE DRIVEN BY THE SOVIET

London.—Premier Vyacheslav Molotov's speech in Moscow was interpreted by the Press Association's diplomatic correspondent as designed to prepare the Soviet public for Moscow's eventual participation in an Anglo-French-Russian pact.

The writer expressed belief that Molotov's pronouncements indicated Soviet Russia's determination to drive a "hard bargain" with London and Paris.

"His speech, in fact, indicates acceptance of the general principle that further acts of aggression must be stopped," the correspondent said.

"The questions raised by Molotov will delay the final settlement, but there appear to be no points raised that offer insuperable barriers to an agreement."

"It is obvious that some preparation must be made for what amounts to an almost complete reversal of Soviet policy and, from this viewpoint, the speech may be intended to a large extent for internal consumption."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said: "The general impression left by Molotov's speech is that the Russian government genuinely desire an agreement and are in fact committed to joining the anti-aggression front."

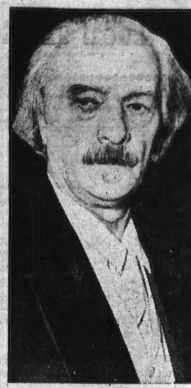

"There still, on the other hand, seems to lurk in Molotov's mind some doubt as to the earnestness of our side. It would be a grievous misfortune if the success of the tripartite negotiations were unnecessarily jeopardized at this latest stage through an imperfect realization of each other's intentions."

German Film

Request For Return Of Same Refused By Quebec Authorities

Quebec.—A request by German authorities in Montreal for return of a moving picture film seized three weeks ago by provincial police has been refused, Premier Duplessis said.

The German consul in Montreal had written the Quebec attorney-general's department asking for the return of the "Nazi film," but was informed that was impossible since "court action was being taken," the premier said.

He did not enlarge on his statement regarding "court action." "Nazism and Bolshevism" are closely linked in their persecution of religion," said the premier. "There is no room for either in Quebec."

Welcomed Home

German Soldiers Who Fought To Win Spanish Civil War Return To Fatherland

Berlin.—Germany welcomed home 4,500 soldiers who helped General Franco win the Spanish civil war, signed a non-aggression pact with Denmark and prepared to honor Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia.

Field Marshal Goering, representing Chancellor Hitler, in Hamburg greeted the Germans who went to Spain to "fight Bolshevism." At the same time Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in the Berlin foreign office signed the agreement with Denmark. Herluf Zahle, Danish minister in Berlin, signed for Denmark during a brief ceremony.

Boy Saves A Life

Winnipeg.—Eleven-year-old Ralph Wood received praise for saving the life of Phyllis Batchelor, 10, when she came in contact with a charged conduit pipe while burying a dead sparrow. Ralph picked up a box in an effort to knock his playmate free from the electrically charged pipe which she clutched instinctively but instead hit the pipe, breaking the connection.

Interested In Island

The Queen Would Like To Own An Island At The Coast

Vancouver.—The Queen would like to buy one of the islands that dot the Straits of Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Vancouver, she said.

"Could I buy one of those islands?" she asked Captain H. E. Neddien, of the Prince Robert, which brought Their Majesties from the provincial capital to Vancouver.

She was told she probably could and the suggestion immediately was made unofficially that if any are still the property of the crown—actually the Canadian government—one be deeded to the Queen.

Government heads are expected to consider the proposal if Her Majesty was serious in her wish to own one of the large, fir-covered islands which beautify the strait.

Rush For Church Seats

Hundreds Want To Worship With Their Majesties In Hyde Park

Hyde Park, N.Y.—So many parishioners in Montreal for worship with King George and Queen Elizabeth at St. James Episcopal (Anglican) church June 11 that Rev. Frank Wilson has had his telephone service cut off during meals so he will have time to eat.

All the 250 eligible parish members want to be on hand—hundreds of other persons. But the two sections of pews, separated by a red carpet aisle, will hold only 200. And 80 seats have been set aside for the royal and presidential parties.

ARMED FORCES OF BRITAIN TO BE STRENGTHENED

London.—Upon the massive shoulders of General Sir Edmund Ironside Great Britain placed the task of bringing together the military views of army staffs linked with Britain and France in a bloc to stem aggression.

In a sudden move to bring Britain's armed forces to a new high pitch of preparedness, the war office revived the post of inspector-general of the overseas forces and named Sir Edmund to the office.

A second office, also non-existent since the war, was re-established with the appointment of General Sir Walter Kirke as inspector-general of the territorial army to co-ordinate the air and precautions civilian forces with the work of military authorities.

The appointment of Sir Edmund to a post which will form "a liaison with foreign staffs" was given additional significance by word that the army heads of nations joined in the Anglo-French anti-aggression front had been invited to attend British army manoeuvres next autumn.

It was considered likely that Sir Edmund would have his first personal contact with the army chiefs of Poland, Turkey and possibly Russia during the September war games. General Moragas Sarmento, chief of the Portuguese army general staff, also has been invited and it was taken for granted a high French military officer would attend.

Sir Edmund will come from Gibraltar, where he was appointed governor and commander during the Czech-Slovak crisis, to take over his new post about July 1.

The army's tallest and heaviest officer—he stands six feet five—Sir Edmund has seen service in three continents and is credited with knowing 16 languages.

He served with distinction in the Boer war and the German West African campaign during the Great War and commanded all Allied forces against the Bolsheviks in Russia after the Great War.

The command in Gibraltar will be taken over by Lieut.-General Sir Clive Liddell.

A new "show up" department of the war office to maintain a system of statistics which will show trends of military requirements also was announced. The branch will be headed by H. A. Fortington as director general of progress and statistics. The establishment of the three inspector-generalships apparently was recommended by Leslie Hore-Belisha, the war secretary who recently declared "the nation must sleep on its laurels."

The same idea supplied the theme of a recent remark by the new inspector-general of the territorial army, who said:

"It looks to me as though Hitler in the comparatively short space of two years, may achieve what Napoleon failed to do in 20 years—that is, make the British people a military nation."

KING AND QUEEN WERE AT HOME IN JASPER PARK

Jasper Park Lodge, Alta.—Queen Elizabeth had a little home all her own in Jasper park and like any woman the first thing she did was to go poking about the cupboards in the kitchen, ask about the electric ice box and the telephone.

What interested her most was how the food was prepared and served from a central kitchen. Her private kitchen was not used during the 24-hour stay except for tea.

She was the guest of the Canadian government in a luxury log cabin where she and the King and their two personal servants slept.

Their retinue of attendants, ladies in waiting, equestrians, officers and Scotland Yard operatives slept in other cabins along Lac Beauvert but the King and Queen were in the cabin where they are ever likely to be in this Dominion.

From the veranda of the log "cottage" the King and Queen could call all the 4,200 square miles of Jasper national park their garden.

Queen Elizabeth delayed a mountain expedition while she asked questions about life in a Rocky Mountain, luxury cottage.

She learned how her food was brought in heated push carts from a central kitchen and placed in electrically-heated cabinets until she was ready for it; how all the gadgets in the place worked, and was told the red and gold telephone would connect her with Buckingham palace, where her daughter-in-law, Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, are waiting for her return to England.

Home of Their Majesties during their visit to the park is one of the most completely equipped cabins known to the travelling public.

Located on a point of land running out into beautiful Lac Beauvert, it commands a magnificent view of the surrounding country, including the Whistler, Pyramid and Edith Cavell mountains.

Outlook Cabin, although part of the lodge, is completely self-sustaining. It contains five bedrooms, two bedrooms for servants, kitchen, pantry, breakfast room, dining room and a large lounge. The cabin is built of logs, peeled and varnished and contains many valuable antiques.

The entrance, which faces Lac Beauvert, is furnished with a specially built rattan suite with an imported oriental grass rug. Two old English footstools with the royal lions on either side are at both sides of the entrance.

The living room contains a large stone fireplace. The main window commands a perfect view of the Whistler mountains. The furniture is of old, Chippendale pattern with unique wrought iron lighting fixtures. Lounge furniture, with animal rugs, add attractiveness to the room.

The dining room accommodates 12 persons. The sideboard contains one of the finest collections of old pewter in Canada. An open fireplace adds a homey touch.

The breakfast room is off the dining room and from its window is an arresting picture of Mount Edith Cavell.
